HE READ TELEGRAM

General Otis Denies Issuing
Liquor Licenses at Manila.

GALLINGER IS SORRY

That He Made Statement to
Contrary and Says So.

Washington, Jan. 21.—No business of special importance was transacted by the senate today in open session. An executive session of more than two hours' duration was held and sixty-six pages of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill were completed before adjournment.

At 2:30 p. m. the senate resumed the transaction of legislative business in open session. Mr. Gallinger (N. H.) said that on last Friday, during the discussion of the amendment of the army reorganization bill intended to prohibit the sale of liquor in the Philippines, he had made a statement that liquor licenses had been issued to saloons in Manila by an army officer whose residence was in California—meaning General Harrison Gray Otis. He then read a telegram from General Otis saying that he never had issued and never had the power to grant such licenses. Mr. Gallinger expressed regret that he had been led into the error, he had made.

"Does that telegram tell," inquired Mr. Cockerell (Mo.), "who did issue the licenses?"

"It does not," replied Mr. Gallinger.

On motion of Mr. Allison, chairman of the committee on appropriations, the senate then proceeded to the consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. When in the reading of the bill the paragraph was reached appropriating $10,000 to keep open the library of congress from 2 until 6 p. m. on each Sunday, Mr. Gallinger (N. H.) said he desired to enter his protest against the opening of the library on Sunday. Congress, it seemed to him, had dealt very generously with the library and the people of the District of Columbia and the latter ought to be satisfied that the library was open thirteen hours each week day.

Mr. Allison replied that the proposed amendment had been recommended by two committees of the senate and by the librarian of congress. Personally he could see no better way for persons sojourning in Washington or for residents there to spend a few hours on Sunday than in the library of congress.

The amendment was agreed to without division.

At 6:35 p. m., after sixty-six pages of the bill had been completed, the senate adjourned.

COCKRELL OFFERS AMENDMENT

It Concerns Expiration of Riehfeld for Sifted Liquors.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Senator Cockerell today introduced the following amendment to the war revenue reduction bill: "That the provisions of the existing laws in regard to the exportation of distilled spirits and wine be amended so as to permit the exportation of rectified or blended spirits in packages of not less than twenty wine gallons, with the privilege of draw back of taxes paid on such distilled spirits provided that the taxable gallons of such rectified or blended spirits are subject to rebate shall be determined according to such regulations as the committee of the internal revenue with the approval of the secretary of the treasury may prescribe."

Senator Martin also introduced an amendment to this bill providing that no deed or contract made or entered into since the war revenue act went into effect shall be considered invalid because of the failure to attach a stamp as required by law.

The explanation is simple. It is because pills in no sense an imaginary remedy, but a simple saline or osmotic with cathartic, a pleasant and effective laxative, and a remedy to give satisfaction most persons possess and very rarely meet. A person suffering from pills will not experiment with a remedy to surgical operations because it is so safe and pleasant, and a cure, compared to surgery, gives a more true and all dragging relief.

DEBATE IS RESUMED

Count Albert De Mun Warns
France of Danger.

ANTI-CLERICAL PASSION

Is What He Calls the Policy of the Prime Minister.

Paris, Jan. 21.—The chamber of deputies today resumed the debate on the law of associations. There was a brilliant assembly in view of Count Albert de Mun, conservative and Waldeck-Rousseau, the premier, two of the finest orators of the chamber, being announced to speak. Count de Mun reproached M. Waldeck-Rousseau with denouncing the millard of France belonging to the religious congregations as an economic peril, in order to revive the ancient dread of monastic wealth and serfdom, which had long since disappeared. Moreover, he said, this sum was greatly exaggerated in order to create a greater impression. He warned the government that their policy was imprudent and ill-advised. M. Waldeck-Rousseau, the count added, may not intend to carry out his designs to the end of his anti-clerical passion. Possibly he only intended to appease his collectivist funds, but the latter might eventually set his hands and carry out the work themselves.

Count de Mun concluded with declaring the object of the government was to take teaching out of the hands of the congregations. "You have begun a religious war," he said, turning to the government benches, "and this will weigh heavily on you. As to us,
